

About that beautiful bar..

The wood that you see on our tasting room bar and back bar came from massive beams used over a century ago to construct sailing ships. After the ships were decommissioned, the beams found a second life as the bones of a factory in Cranbury, New Jersey. The factory manufactured military rations for our troops through two World Wars. In 2016, the factory was torn down. Our finish carpenter procured several of these beams from the factory demolition. The bar is illuminated by salvaged marine cargo lamps and ships' passageway lights. What you see before you is the product of a love of history, extreme craftsmanship, and a hope for some sea-stories yet to come.
